

CONGRESS TO SEE MANY NEW FACES

Old and Brilliant Members Being Beaten or Are Quitting

UNCLE JOE TO RETIRE

Of All Who Will Be Gone He Will Be Most Missed by Both Sides of House

WASHINGTON—The next congress is going to be a really different one from the one that is now in session. Many of the old and brilliant members are being beaten or are quitting.

The leaders of the present congress, who have been attacked by the press, are being beaten or are quitting. The press is attacking them for their conduct in the congress.

Says Lover Committed Suicide

Miss Edythe Lacey and William Coney in the room where Miss Lacey later met her death.

NEW YORK—William Coney and Miss Edythe Lacey were sweethearts. And many times when Coney called on the girl, just as the lovers often do, they sat on the chair-lounge, he with his arm about her whispering sweet words while she hummed sentimental chords on her mandolin.

For them in those moments life presented its sweetest life. Then for some unknown reason a conflict sprang up between them. The tele-grams in her apartment ended. Police say she finally rejected his advances.

But Coney refused to give her up. He called a last time and was ushered into the same duty little room where so often he had held her in his arms and whispered to her his plans for the future.

When police arrived at the house they found the body of the girl lying on the floor. She had been shot to death.

he missing next session. Coney and Ireland of Illinois, two prominent members of the present house, with considerable service behind them, already have been defeated in the primaries.

Over on the senate side the changes will be scarcely less conspicuous. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, the present republican leader, will almost certainly retire. His friends say now that Samuel W. McCall, his republican political foe in Massachusetts, has decided not to contest the primaries with him.

Other changes, however, will be notable. Boies Penrose, the ever-shadowing figure at the start of this session, is no more, and his successor in the powerful chairmanship of the finance committee, Senator Porter J. McCumber of North Dakota, fell in the primaries of North Dakota a few days ago—a victim of the non-partisan league.

The diminutive but commanding figure of Charles C. McNary also is gone. Senator Knox was an outstanding figure in the early part of the present session.

Senator Harry S. New of Indiana, recognized from the start of the session as an administration spokesman in the senate, likewise fell a victim to popular disapproval in the primaries, and in all probability Albert J. Beveridge will come to Washington as his successor.

Brookhart New Member. The brilliant Kenyon of Iowa will be gone. He resigned to accept a federal judgeship, and his successor, Senator Charles R. Hawson,

SAILOR DROWNED IN FLOOD WATER

Jack Thornberg Had Become a Cattleman in the Osage

Special to The World. July 15.—Jack Thornberg, a well-known cattle man of Osage county, was drowned near the Seventh street bridge south of the city limits.

Thornberg attempted to drive a team of horses hitched to a truck board over the dam, concrete highway south of the Seventh street bridge, but the horses got off the road and were caught in the swift current that was sweeping over the road at that place and were carried away.

Thornberg and Mitchell Bunker who was in the rig with him were thrown into the water and Thornberg was drowned. Bunker managed to catch hold of a tree where he hung until rescued a half hour later by two men in a boat. Thornberg disappeared beneath the water, his body becoming entangled in the brush at the side of the road and his body has not been recovered. The dead man had been a sailor for many years and was recognized as one of the best swimmers in this section. He had recovered the bodies of many persons who had drowned.

Thornberg had just returned from Oklahoma City where he had sold a carload of cattle and was returning to his ranch in Osage county when he was drowned. At the point where he died the overflow water from the Cane river had attained a depth of eight feet and was running in a strong current.

Blind Man Unmolested By Illinois Robbers

LITCHFIELD, Ill.—In days of old when knights were bold chivalry held sway. This nobleness of yesteryear is being reflected in some of the modern incidents. A blind man, such as could possibly command the respect of the chivalrous knight was made in a building of a post room here in which all present were lined against the wall and stripped of their valuables.

When the proprietor informed the bandits it made no difference where he stood as his eyes were gone he was not robbed or molested.

He did not try to succeed himself. In his place doubtless will come Smith W. Brookhart, proclaimed in advance as a legislator of the La Follette type.

The spectacular "Jim" Reed may be among the missing next session. He is having the fight of his life in the democratic primary in Missouri against Breckenridge Long and, if successful in this fight, must win again in November in order to come back.

The volatile John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, last of the old-style southern statesmen, will be missing after 25 years of congressional service, 15 in the house and 12 in the senate. There is a strong possibility that John Sharp may be succeeded by a woman from Mississippi. Miss Belle Kearney is seeking his seat and, according to reports in political circles in Washington, she stands a good chance of getting it.

"Uncle Joe" Retires. There is a regret at the passing of many of these prominent figures from Washington official life, but there is genuine, non-partisan sorrow over the retirement of "Uncle Joe" Cannon. "Uncle Joe" is rounding out 46 years of service in the lower house. He has passed his eighty-sixth year. He thinks he has had enough. He will be missed by the democrats no less than by the republicans; but perhaps most of all he will be missed by the hundreds of visitors who daily flock through the senate and who never fail to thrill when the bald-headed man throws out his chest and levels his forefinger and says:

"There, ladies and gentlemen, is 'Uncle Joe' Cannon."

Hi Costa Hotel Life Explained

NEW YORK—And now it comes out—the reason for the high cost of parking one's frame in a Gotham hotel and enjoying the privilege of tiptoeing the bell-hops, waiters, and footmen, to the amount of a couple of cents of change.

Prohibition No. 1, well maybe a little, but not much. Wild ones—wild for the free hair pins, free powder, free towels, free soap, free coffee and free everything she wants and that means at least a ten-cent tip.

Why, the maids say that in the old days a woman would walk in, help herself to anywhere from three to a dozen hairpins when she needed but two, powder her nose and then replenish the supply in her own vanity case, manure her hair and drop the tools—absent-mindedly, of course—in her bag.

And many is the bathroom decorated with towels bearing any one of a dozen hotel names.

And say those who know—who paid—the women who used to do this grafting were well-to-do for the most part.

Keeping that room supplied cost a small fortune monthly.

"But it's funny," said one manager, "how a ten-cent tip has stopped the practice. It has saved us thousands. The average woman who would think nothing of paying $20 for a poodle just hates to part with a thin dime for the maid, she'll use her own powder and hairpins first."

Government Planning Livestock Bulletins. WASHINGTON—The department of agriculture is contemplating the inauguration of a nation-wide livestock reporting service to inform livestock producers and buyers of prospective supplies, hoping thereby to stabilize the livestock and meat industry by permitting closer correlation of supply and demand.

The plan, officials said, is still in the making. Full details will be worked out at Denver, Colo., on July 17, at a conference of state and federal officials and representatives of the entire livestock and meat industry.

Hawaiian Women Smoke Millions of Cigarets. HONOLULU, T. H.—Honolulu women consume 355,000 packages of cigarettes yearly, it is estimated by tobacco dealers of the city, who place an approximate value of $2,000,000 on the actual number of "pulls" smoked by the gentler sex during the twelvemonth.

These figures are said by the retail tobacco merchants to represent a heavy increase in cigarette smoking on the part of Honolulu women during the past year, although definite figures on previous years are not available.

The smoking habit among women in the islands is said by those who are in a position to make direct observations to be general among all classes and ages, although it is most prevalent among the younger women, particularly those who have no families and no definite occupation.

Fund Shortage Retards French Library Growth. PARIS—Unless the government votes funds for a new building the library museum of the World war, established here in 1917, must cease to grow, according to L'Echo National. Present quarters in the rue du Colisée are entirely inadequate. The library alone has increased from 12,000 to more than 100,000 volumes. Many objects of interest to all allied nationals have been assembled in the museum.

Faulty Crates Cause Loss of Cauliflower. WASHINGTON—Approximately 22 per cent of Oregon cauliflower shipments reach the New York market in a damaged condition owing to faulty construction of the crates containing the produce, an investigation by the department of agriculture disclosed.

"The fault lay with the construction of the crates and not the cauliflower," an official declared. "A well constructed container that will insure the safe arrival of the produce at distant markets should be used."
